Helping Parents Learn to Structure a Healthy Environment: DBT Skills for Working with Parents

Friday, November 3, 2017
8:00 am—12:15 pm (Check-in 7:30 am)
Beaver Creek Country Club
9535 Mapleville Rd, Hagerstown, MD 21740

This workshop will provide clinicians with effective tools to help them engage parents in a therapeutic process which will enable parents to learn effective parenting skills. Taught by an experienced clinical social worker and parent coach through anecdotes and the teaching of specific DBT skills, clinicians will learn strategies they can utilize to teach parents how to understand behaviors, recognize family patterns, and make effective parenting decisions to establish a healthy and safe environment for the entire family.

At conclusion, attendees should be able to:

- Describe BioSocial Theory and how it can be used to help parents understand their child's difficulties;
- Explain how validating parents can keep them engaged in the change process;
- List and discuss the skills of the Middle Path module of DBT for parents and children;
- Use 4 DBT skills to teach parents to create a healthier environment and to de-escalate children who are in crisis.

Featuring: Pat Harvey, LCSW-C, ACSW

Ms. Harvey has over 35 years of experience working with families and currently coaches parents of youth and adults who have emotion dysregulation using a DBT framework. She facilitates trainings and workshops on DBT concepts, skills, and family interventions throughout the U.S.

She is the co-author of the books Parenting a Child Who Has Intense Emotions; Dialectical Behavior Therapy for At-Risk Adolescents; Parenting a Teen Who Has Intense Emotions and Hey, I'm Here Too (a book for siblings of youth who have emotional challenges). In addition, Pat has co-authored an article about the grief of parents who have a child with mental illness and an article for Pediatric Nursing about the concept of validation.

This program is funded in part by the William B. and Sylvia A. Hunsberger Fund
